Organizational structure:

The activity of the State Labour and Social Security Inspectorate is regulated by the Royal Decree-Law 192/2018, published in the Journal of Laws of 7 April 2018. In virtue of the said act new statutes of the institution were approved, which determine its organizational structure and the financial and property regime.

Management, coordination and supervision over the Inspectorate's activity belongs to the responsibilities of the central services, i.e. the Directorate of the OSITSS within the Ministry of Labour and Social Economy.

In addition to the central services, the OSITSS is divided into:

- territorial directorates located in all 19 autonomous communities of the country.
- and
- provincial inspectorates located in all 50 provinces in the country.

Fields of activity:

- health and safety at work;
- labour relations: individual and collective;
- employment: employment provisions, unemployment protection; labour migration and work of foreigners; vocational training; temporary work agencies and employment agencies.
- social security: registration in the social security system, contributions, benefits.
